

Why Vineti

Advanced therapies require advanced software

In personalized therapies, great science is just the beginning. Innovative cell and gene therapies, along with personalized cancer vaccines, require new digital strategies to reach patients efficiently. Too many key stakeholders try to use disconnected, manual systems and software, leading to redundancy, data errors, and risky handoffs that can compromise patient safety.

The stages of personalized treatments: solve for challenges before they begin

Vineti's Personalized Therapy Management (PTM) software solution empowers biopharma and life science companies to control medicine's most complex supply chain.

CHALLENGE 1

Ordering and scheduling

Disparate stakeholders and IT systems can increase complexity for Providers. Optimize your order process with industry-leading usability in the clinic.

CHALLENGE 2

Collection

Chain of Identity and Custody must be documented in GMP processes. Capture accurate data and initiate control of the patient product.

CHALLENGE 3

Manufacturing capacity

Personalized therapies require sophisticated orchestration of manufacturing availability and the supply chain. Drive more efficient manufacturing with real-time multi-party capacity management.

CHALLENGE 4

Logistics orchestration

Effective supply chain management depends on integrated logistics visibility and control. Vineti provides key stakeholders with real-time order information and alerts.

CHALLENGE 5

Manufacturing traceability

Manufacturing can be distributed – in-house, satellite, or CMO. Vineti helps provide transparency, control, and consistency.

CHALLENGE 6

Labeling

New data at key steps in the patient journey make standard label generation and reconciliation complex. Vineti's solution provides real-time flexibility.

With Vineti you can:

- Automate Chain of Identity, Chain of Custody, and Chain of Condition
- Enable sophisticated scheduling of manufacturing slots and shipping from hospitals and labs, worldwide
- Drive more efficient manufacturing and fulfill more orders daily
